Quarterly meetings instituted to share best practices and meeting plans. This was in response to concerns about excess overlap and advertising plans between meetings. Online education group working with meetings to optimize their content development.

COLLABORATION

Online education working with CME committee and meetings to enhance offerings.

FUTURE PROJECTS

Continue quarterly meetings to ensure all critical content is covered across our educational offerings. This will be particularly important as we work to assist our members with board certification.

POSTED JUNE 2022

- August 23, 2021
- Summary of Discussion: Committee members introduced status of their meeting and provided learning points on virtual meetings and best practices moving forward.

Summary of Group Meeting 2:

- November 11, March 2, scheduled May 15
- Summary of Discussion: Based on meetings 1 and 2, team decided quarterly meetings were an excellent method to share information on planned session, best practices and future decisions.

DESCRIPTION & GOALS

Standing quarterly meetings were not previously utilized. With the advent of online education, including CME, and more meetings, the team felt these sessions were key to ensuring content was shared effectively across without excess duplication or missed topics.

ACCME reaccreditation. SCA is accredited by ACCME to provide CME credit for our educational programming. This accreditation is reviewed periodically by ACCME and is important given the primary focus of much of the Society's work is education. Our accreditation status was reviewed last year, and we were approved to provide CME credit for another five years.

CME credit for Echo Corner section of Newsletter. This was approved by the board in October 2020. In addition, a new Pro/Con debate section will be added to the Newsletter.

Committee membership. Dr. Andrew Shaw will rotate off the committee effective April 2021, and Dr. Kathryn Glas will assume the Chair, as President-Elect of the Society. Dr Dalia Banks will join at the same time following her success in the recent Society elections.
